TUESDAY
11 SEPTEMBER

Live out your Lady Chatterley fantasies at tonight's 'dating/gardening' event, hosted by The Chelsea Gardener and Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Centre, which promises 'bulb planting can be incredibly seductive'. Tickets, £10, call 020 7915 4776.

WEDNESDAY
12 SEPTEMBER

Join the jet set (or just go for a good gawp) as Christie's auctions off the fabulous contents of a town house in Holland Park and a chalet in St Moritz. Bid for countless pairs of Manolo Blahniks or 23 (yes, count 'em, Victoria Beckham) crocodile Hermès bags. www.christies.com.

THURSDAY
13 SEPTEMBER

Diamond solitaire? Snore. Ming Lampson's stunning, imaginative and unique jewellery reflects her apprenticeship in Jaipur, India, and her passion for creating bespoke pieces that reflect their owner's personality. Her Portobello store is now open at 108 Talbot Road, London W11. Call 020 7243 6545.

FRIDAY
14 SEPTEMBER

Exhibition Documenting Style features 60 years of fashion photography by picture agency Magnum. Look out for Eve Arnold's images of a 1950s Harlem fashion show and Ferdinando Scianna's shots of Dita Von Teese for Grazia (below). Call 020 7490 1771.

SATURDAY
15 SEPTEMBER

Expect riots at branches of Harvey Nichols nationwide as new deliveries of the latest beauty obsession arrive. Silkskin's pure silk pillowcase, which promises fewer wrinkles, has sold out three times since its launch and invariably has a long waiting list. £35; www.shop.harveynichols.com.

SUNDAY
16 SEPTEMBER

To celebrate its 10-year association with London Fashion Week, Moët & Chandon will be presenting a spectacular 'happening'. The Moët Mirage by artist Usman Haque is a golden cloud of moving light the size of a football pitch that will be released into the skies above London's Holland Park at sunset tonight. www.moet.com.

MONDAY
17 SEPTEMBER

Cure those back-to-work blues with The Invoice Book! Dave Cooke and Iain Dunn send ludicrous invoices to everyone who annoys them, from the Archbishop of Canterbury to Ikea. Daft but inspiring (we'll be billing Chanelle and Ziggy, forthwith). £8.99, www.amazon.co.uk.

TUESDAY
18 SEPTEMBER

Last chance to see (or buy!) Sotheby's London Rocks, a selling exhibition of contemporary jewellery, which finishes today. Check out the edgy pieces by Shaun Leane, whose romantic yet urban designs feature in Alexander McQueen's catwalk shows. www.sothebys.com.
